

On the road, place to place
Reading highway signs as I live my life out of a beat up suitcase
Missed my flight
Now I've got to drive
I'm shaking off the rust, I hope this caffeine buzz will get me through the night

Sometimes I forget where I am
Boston, Dallas or Detroit Michigan
I kiss your face across the word wide web
And my emotions are hanging on, but they're hanging by a thread

Just one more night of loneliness
And this hollow feeling in my chest
Cause my heart stays with you even when I'm gone
Just one more night of emptiness
I swear I never could've guessed
Just one more night, could seem so long

Hotel bed, CNN
Trying to pass the time but when I close my eyes I just see your face again
I thought I found success
But I second guess
Spending so much time, chasing dollar signs at the price of happiness

Sometimes I forget where I am
Boston, Dallas or Detroit Michigan
I'm trying to build a future, trying to plan ahead
But missing you makes me wonder, if it's worth it in the end

Just one more night of loneliness
And this hollow feeling in my chest
Cause my heart stays with you even when I'm gone
Just one more night of emptiness
I swear I never could've guessed
Just one more night, could seem so long

Do you remember, when all we had was our love and so much time
Things were simpler before, with so much less but so much more

Just one more night of loneliness
And this hollow feeling in my chest
Cause my heart stays with you even when I'm gone
Just one more night of emptiness
I swear I never could've guessed
Just one more night, could seem so long

Words and Music by Michael Cavanaugh and Jamie Hosmer 2017